

A word from the Principal

Graduating Seniors of 2021,

I am proud of everything you have accomplished over your four years of high school. It may be easy to think that because your 11th grade year was cut short by a global pandemic and your senior year was completely remote, that you have nothing to celebrate. I beg to differ and hope that in the future you will be able to reflect on your high school days as some of the most impactful you had. Take a quick trip down memory lane with me...You have been on industry trips, participated in design jams, visited colleges all over the country (yes some virtually), completed performance task after performance task, led tours of our school for new students, competed at field days, and ultimately, set yourself up for success. Like I said, I'm extremely proud of the work you've done.

Here are my final words of wisdom to The Urban Assembly Maker Academy Class of 2021. These are the same parting pieces of advice I gave to our first three classes and ones that I believe still ring true and ones that I hope for all graduates of our school.

Remain curious. Always ask questions...of everyone...and listen intently to the answers. When you have a difficult decision, talk to the people that will be honest with you, that know your strengths and shortcomings and just listen. They will provide you with the insight you need to make the right decision. There is always a path to what you want in life, but sometimes you have to take a little detour to get there. That is not terrible.

Continue empathizing. By doing this you will better understand the people you work with. You will find out what motivates them, what makes them excited, sad, and mad. If you continue developing your ability to do this, you will be able to problem-solve when these very people present roadblocks, some intentional and some unintentional, to your goals.

Take risks. I moved to New York from Kansas twice. Those were both the biggest risks I have ever taken and look at what it has produced for me. I have also failed...a lot...multiple times...some of those with you all. Every single one of them I have learned from. Some risks you take will backfire and some will be great, however, you will never know what you are truly capable of if you do not try. You will fail and fail often and that is okay because every time you do you learn.

Use your self awareness. Graduates of Maker have an uncanny ability to understand people. Use this skill when you find yourselves in difficult situations. Consider the role you played in leading to the situation. Was there something you could have done differently? If so, share that with those surrounding you in the situation. Being able to admit your own limitations and faults shows humility, a trait that will take you far in life.

Remain resilient. We have been through a lot together. Never forget that you have complete control over your life. Do not ever, ever let someone make a decision on your behalf. You have set yourselves up to do anything you want and I know you will.

If you ever need anything, literally, anything, you know how to reach me.

-Luke

It was a breezy morning and it was the day after Christmas break. I was on my way to UA Maker and was about to hop on the _____ train. When I got off the train, I saw _____, and we walked together to school to go to the Maker Space. It's been a _____ while since I've seen all my friends, and I am most definitely looking forward to seeing _____. I sit at the Maker Space when someone taps my shoulder. It's _____. I felt _____ seeing them.

The bell rings and it's time to go to _____ class. _____ tells me to take off my earphones, so I do. I sit at my desk and _____ is sitting next to me. The person asks me "Hey, do you watch _____?" I say "Yes!!! I love that show so so much!!" _____ is so _____. _____ who is sitting on the other side next to me, tells me to quiet down. I feel like throwing a _____ at them, but instead, I keep my cool.

After the fourth period, it was finally lunchtime and I was so _____. I begin walking towards the staircase to go to the cafeteria when _____ asks for my number. I feel real _____. My friend _____, and asks me "Did they just ask for your number?" No way they are so _____! I _____, and then say "shhhh you're too loud!"

I finally went down to the cafeteria with _____. I walk over to my usual spot next to the salad bar but _____ is sitting on my seat. I felt so incredibly _____. I decide to take matters into my own hands and tell them to get up from my seat. They look me in the eyes and say _____, and leave from the table. My friends look at me and _____ amongst themselves.
